

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. THE SMILE
ON THE FACE
OF THE TIGER

Digitized by Google

STOCKWELL HALL

THE SMILE
ON THE FACE OF THE TIGER

I

There was a young lady of Niger,
Who smiled as she rode on a tiger;
They returned from the ride
With the lady inside,
And the smile on the face of the tiger.

II

There was a young man of St. Kitts,
Who was very much troubled with fits;
The eclipse of the moon
Threw him into a swoon;
When he tumbled and broke into bits.

III

There was an old man of Tobago,
Who lived on rice, gruel, and sago;
Till much to his bliss
His physician said this —
“To a leg, sir, of mutton you may go.”

IV

There was a young fellow named Paul,
Who went to a fancy dress ball;
They say, just for fun
He dressed up like a bun,
And was "et" by a dog in the hall.

V

There once was a Polo called "Marc,"
Who sailed up to Peru in the dark;
It caused him to shudder
And cling to the rudder
When he heard the "Peruvian bark."

VI

There once was a lady from Guam,
Who said, "Now the sea is so calm
I will swim, for a lark ;"
But she met with a shark.
Let us now sing the ninetieth psalm.

VII

I'd rather have fingers than toes,
I'd rather have ears than a nose,
 And as for my hair,
 I'm glad it's all there,
I'll be awfully sad when it goes.

VIII

A lovelorn young student most frantic
Screamed out in his best Esperantic,
 “Caj woh elj maj fuj
 Y con sluj mi vol tuj!”
Now isn't that simply romantic?

IX

There was an old man who said, "How
Shall I flee from this horrible cow ?

I will sit on this stile

And continue to smile,

Which may soften the heart of that cow."

X

There was an old man who said, "Do
Tell me how I'm to add two and two?
I'm not very sure
That it doesn't make four —
But I fear that is almost too few."

XI

There was a young woman named Sue,
Who wanted to catch the 2.02;
Said the trainman, "Don't hurry
Or flurry or worry ;
It's a minute or two to 2.02."

XII

There was a young fellow named Tait,
Who dined with his girl at 8.08;
But I'd hate to relate
What that fellow named Tait
And his tête-à-tête ate at 8.08 !

XIII

There was a young fellow named Hall,
Who fell in the spring in the fall ;
 'Twould have been a sad thing
 If he'd died in the spring,
But he didn't, — he died in the fall.

XIV

There was a young lady of Truro,
Who wished a mahogany bureau,
But they said to her, "God
On the length of Cape Cod
Couldn't raise a mahogany bureau!"

XV

A fellow named Teddy Magee,
Rolling homeward one night from a spree,
Met the parson, who said,
“Ah! drunk again, Ted!”
“Sho'm I, parson,” gurgled Magee.

XVI

There was a young man from the city,
Who met what he thought was a kitty;
He gave it a pat,
And said, "Nice little cat!"
And they buried his clothes out of pity.

XVII

There was an old maiden from Fife,
Who had never been kissed in her life;
 Along came a cat ;
 And she said, " I'll kiss that ! "
But the cat answered, " Not on your life ! "

XVIII

There was a young lady of Crete,
Who was so exceedingly neat,
When she got out of bed
She stood on her head,
To make sure of not soiling her feet.

XIX

There was an old maid of Shanghai,
Who was so exceedingly shy,
 When undressing at night,
 She turned out the light,
For fear of the All Seeing Eye.

XX

There once was a Master of Arts,
Who was nuts upon cranberry tarts;
 When he'd eaten his fill,
 He was awfully ill;
But he still was a Master of Arts.

XXI

A Colonel, who used to assert
That naught his digestion could hurt,
Was forced to admit
That his weak point was hit
When they gave him hot shot for dessert.

XXII

I wish that my room had a floor ;
I don't so much care for a door ;
 But this crawling around
 Without touching the ground
Is getting to be quite a bore.

XXIII

There was an old man of Tarentum,
Who chewed on his teeth till he bent 'em,
When he saw they were bent
Said, "I don't care a cent,
You know I don't own 'em, I rent 'em."

XXIV

There was a young man from Ostend,
Who vowed he'd hold out to the end;
 But when half way over
 From Calais to Dover,
He did what he didn't intend.

XXV

There was a young girl named O'Neill,
Who went up in the great Ferris Wheel;
But when half way around
She looked at the ground,
And it cost her an eighty-cent meal.

XXVI

A sleeper from the Amazon
Put nighties of his gra'mazon —
The reason, that
He was too fat
To get his own pajamazon.

XXVII

There was a man in Henderson,
Who had a tall and slenderson,
 A human rail,
 Who used a nail,
To fasten his suspenderson.

XXVIII

There was a man in Atchison,
Whose trousers had rough patchison ;
 He found them great,
 He'd often state,
To scratch his parlor matchison.

XXIX

A silly young fellow named Hyde,
In a funeral procession was spied ;
 When asked, " Who is dead ?"
 He giggled and said,
" I don't know ; I just came for the ride."

XXX

There was an old man in a hearse,
Who murmured, "This might have been worse;
Of course the expense
Is simply immense,
But it doesn't come out of my purse."

XXXI

There was a young man of Fort Blainey,
Who proposed to a typist named Janey :
 When his friends said, “ Oh, dear !
 She’s so old and so queer ! ”
He replied, “ But the day was so rainy ! ”

XXXII

There was a young man from the West,
Who loved a young lady with zest ;
 So hard did he press her
 To make her say, " Yes, sir,"
That he broke three cigars in his vest.

XXXIII

There was a young sailor of Lyd,
Who loved a fair Japanese kid ;
 When it came to good-bye,
 They were eager but shy,
So they put up a sunshade and — did.

XXXIV

There once was a maiden of Siam,
Who said to her lover, young Kiam,
 “If you kiss me, of course
 You will have to use force,
But God knows you’re stronger than I am.”

XXXV

There once was an old man of Lyme,
Who married three wives at a time :
When asked, " Why a third ?"
He replied, " One's absurd !
And bigamy, sir, is a crime."

XXXVI

Who playfully poisoned his Ma ;
 When he'd finished his work,
 He remarked with a smirk,
“ This will cause quite a family jar.”

XXXIX

There was an old lady of Brooking,
Who had a great genius for cooking ;
 She could bake sixty pies
 All of quite the same size,
And tell which was which without looking.

XL

A joiner of intellect crude
Said, "Why not use sawdust for food?
It's cheap by the ton,
And it nourishes one,
And that's the chief object of food."

XLI

There once was a girl of New York,
Whose body was lighter than cork;
 She had to be fed
 For six weeks upon lead,
Before she went out for a walk.

XLII

For beauty I am not a star,
There are others more handsome by far ;
 But my face ; — I don't mind it,
 For I am behind it ;
It's the people in front that I jar.

21

XLIII

A father once said to his son,
"The next time you make up a pun,
Go out in the yard
And kick yourself hard,
And I will begin when you've done."

XLIV

There was an old woman of Tweedle,
Who sat down in church on a needle;
 Though deeply imbedded,
 'Twas luckily threaded,
And extracted at once by the beadle.

XLV

Who was so excessively thin,
That when she essayed
To drink lemonade
She slipped through the straw and fell in.

XLIX

There was an old man from Antigua,
Whose wife said, " My dear, what a pig you are!"

He replied, " O my queen,
Is it manners you mean,
Or do you refer to my fig-u-a ?"

L

There was a young lady named Perkins,
Who had a great fondness for gherkins ;
 She went to a tea
 And ate twenty-three,
Which pickled her internal workin's.

LI

There was a young lady named Maud,
A very deceptive young fraud ;
 She never was able
 To eat at the table,
But out in the pantry.— O Lord !

LII

There was a young maid who said, " Why
Can't I look in my ear with my eye ?

 If I put my mind to it

 I'm sure I can do it :

You never can tell till you try."

LIII

Who got squeezed in a terrible crowd ;
 The thing that most vexed her
 Was that there stood next her
A man who said "Damn" right out loud.

LVII

A mathematical maiden named Chaucer
Cried "O fie!" and "For shame!" and "O law, Sir!"
"Dividers have limbs
Like indelicate hims,
So circles I draw with a saucer."

STOCKWELL HALL

LVIII a

There was a young lady named Hannah,
Who slipped on a peel of banana.
More stars she espied
As she lay on her side
Than are found in the Star Spangled Banner.

LVIII b

A gentleman sprang to assist her ;
He picked up her glove and her wrister ;
 “ Did you fall, Ma'am ? ” he cried ;
 “ Do you think,” she replied,
“ I sat down for the fun of it, Mister ? ”

LIX

There once was a doughty young fly,
Who said, "I will do it or die;"
 So she took off her stocking,
 A spectacle shocking,
And waded right into a pie.

LX

There was a young woman from Wilts
Who went up to Scotland on stilts.

When they said, "Oh, how shocking
To show so much stocking!"
She answered, "Well, how about kilts?"

LXI

There was a young lady of Lynn,
Who believed in original sin.

She'd try to be good
As hard as she could, —
And then she'd go at it ag'in.

LXII

Augustus Fitzgibbons Moran
Fell in love with Maria McCann.

With a yell and a whoop
He cleared the front stoop
Just ahead of her papa's brogan.

LXIII

Said a bad little youngster named Beauchamp,
“Those jelly tarts, how shall I reauchamp?
 To my parents I’d go,
 But they always say no,
No matter how much I beseauchamp.”

LXIV

A bright little maid in St. Thomas
Discovered a suit of pajhommas.

Said the maiden, "Well, well !

What they are I can't tell,

But I'm sure that these garments St.
Mhoma's."

LXV

An amorous M. A.
Says that cupid, the C. D.,
Doesn't cast for his health
But is rolling in wealth —
He's the John Jacob-B. H.

A young person of Tomahawk Bluff
Carried pistols to make him look tough.
When they asked, "Do you chew?"
He replied, "Yes, I do,
I'm a wegular wetch of a wough."

LXXXVIII

There was a young lady of Skye,
With a shape like a capital I;
She said, "It's too bad!
But then, I can pad,"
Which shows you that figures can lie.

LXXXIX

There was a young lady from Joppa,
Whose friends all decided to drop her.
She went to Ostend
On a trip with a friend —
And the rest of the story's improper.

XC

There was a young woman named Florence,
Who for kissing professed great abhorrence ;
 But when she'd been kissed
 And found what she'd missed,
She cried till the tears came in torrents.

XCI

There was a young lady named Nell,
Who considered herself quite a belle ;
She sat on the sand
And held her own hand,
And never discovered the sell.

XCII

There was a young person called Kate,
Who sat on the stairs very late.

When asked how she fared,
She said she was scared,
But was otherwise doing first-rate.

There was a young lady named Banker,
Who slept while the ship lay at anchor ;
 She awoke in dismay
 When she heard the mate say :
“ Now hoist up the top sheet, and spanker.”

CVIII

There once was a lady so fair
That no one could see she was there :
 It may not seem decent
 To be so translucent,
But we pardon all things to the fair.

CIX

There was an old monk of Siberia,
Whose existence grew drearier and drearier ;
 He burst from his cell
 With a hell of a yell,
And eloped with the Mother Superior.
